A REGULAR BANQUET TO-DAY

LITTLE SCHOOLGIRL COOKS GOING AHEAD WITH A RUSH.

Pan-Brotted Chops, Ontmenl, Mashed Po-Apples Prepared at the Vandowater Street chool-An Analysis of the Food Written by the Cooks on the Blackboard.

Logie is logic, cooking is cooking, cooks oks, and those little girls at the Vandewater street school are going on at a great

Why, to-day they did up a regular ban-quet. There were pan-broiled chops, oatwhy, to-day they did up a regular banquet. There were pan-broiled chops, oatmeal, mashed potstoes, crisped crackers and stewed apples on their menu, and they did all the work.

Those chops would have furnished valuable pointers to most of the city chop-house keepers, too. The way the young cooks watched them and watched the minutes of the clock was a caution. It was a precaution, also, lest the chops get seared too much on one side or the other, or kept on broiling longer than the regulation five minutes.

There were three housekeepers for this time, and they were Celia Davids, Mary O'Connor and Lena Ohelman. The cooks, eleven of them, were Emma Adams, Minnie Lubben, Luise Begore, Lizzie Kunz, Minnie Weinstein, Mabel Schingloff, Nellie Sullivan, Addie Cashman, Annie Lanz, Maggie Hanley and Mary Cappel.

Annie Lang had charge of stewing the apples, and first she took all the cores out, leaving the apples otherwise whole.

Then a half lemon was squeezed into a mucer and dry granulated sugar was stirred into it until it was all absorbed and the sugar was yellow. That was for the flavoring, It went into the apples where the cores had been, and then the fruit was ready to stew.

Several of the embryo housekeepers wore to-day the natty white caps of muslin or lace which are to be adopted by all the members of the class.

Too many cooks don't spoil the broth, nor of the class.

Too many cooks don't spoil the broth, nor the chops, nor anything else up at that school. They only make so many living proofs of what can be done by the exciting of interest and the exercise of patience.

A look at the eager faces in the school kitchen is evidence enough of the interest in the cooking class.

kitchen is evidence enough of the interest in the cooking class, a glance at the neatly kept note-books is proof of the understanding of the class members and the results of the class operations over the gas stoves give ample as-surance of the practicabily of it all.

The analysis of food, its qualities and uses, on the blackboard to-day, was particu-larly good in its arrangement and its chi-rography, and was the unassisted work of the girls in the class.

A GREAT ENTERPRISE.

What Brother Journalists Have to Say About " The World's " Progress

[From the Spracues Herald.]
Mr. Pulitner, of the New York WonLD, has "moved on" to the purchase of property in Park Row at a cost of $650,000, on which he proposes to erect the most complete newspaper building in the

The big New York WORLD, with its big etreals and hig bank account, le to have the biggest sort of a great big building. The site selected is that now occupied by French's Hotel. The price paid by Mr. Pulitzer for the property was $650,000, and he is to expend $1,000,000 upon the proposed solid and elaborate structure.

The New York Wonlo has purchased the Prench's Hotel property in New York City, the sum agreed upon being $630,000. Upon the site Mr. sum agreed upon being soon, on. Opon the site air, Pulitier intends erecting one of the finest newspaper edifices in the world. The World is a mighty big thing, and has to have big quarters wherein to show its light, and in the mean time it will continue to pour hot shot into everything that is deserving of it.

[From the Shenandeah Herald.] After a year's negotiation the site now occupied by French's Hotel, Park Row, New York, was recently transferred to Joseph Pullizer for $530,000, and the deed signed. Mr. Pullizer purposes beginning the erection of an office for THE WORLD on the ground, at an estimated cost of $1,000,000, and contractors can be made, which that paper says will be the finest newspaper edifice in America.

[From the Birminghoss Hersich.] [From the Birmingham Herald.]

Mr. Joseph Pulitzer has purchased French's Hotel, New York, and proposes to erect on that Hotel, New York, and proposes to erect on that aits a 'most commodious and imposing newspaper edifice," to be occupied by The World. The building, it is promised, will be 'an ornament to the city and a great public improvement." The Tribune Building has long had the prestige of being the finest belonging to any newspaper in the metropolis, but The World's new enterprise will probably eclipse it.

[From the Weshington Critic.]

Mr. Pulitzer, of the New York WORLD, having paid over $600,000 for a site, proposes to expend over $1,000,000 in improving it; which means that over $1,000,000 in improving it; which means that the newspaper offue he contemplates erecting on the French's Hotel property will exceed all similar establishments on the face of the globe in the completeness of its appointments and the ornateness of its architecture. People who are inclined to doubt the usual accuracy of newspaper satisfies will here find evidence of the most substantial and incontrovertible character that Thu Ostal's phenomenal success is all that has ever been claimed for it.
